Student film up for top award

A SHORT film shot by Matraville High School students is a finalist in the 2017 NOVA Employment Focus on Ability Awards.

Students with special needs collaborated to create the film Stix and Stones, which examines the roles of bullies, bystanders, and the people who want to make a difference.

The winner of the judge's choice award will receive a $10,000 Toshiba prize pack. The film with the most online votes will win a $10,000 voucher to spend at Rebel.

The school community is urging residents to get behind the film for a chance to win. Voting is open until Monday, August 7. Each day during voting, a $50 iTunes gift voucher is up for grabs.
